You Can Count On Us To Be Here

The recent economic downturn has affected almost everyone in some way or another. Many businesses have been forced to cut back employees and services; some have been forced to close altogether.

We want you to know as you consider your commercial maintenance and landscaping needs that Keesen Enterprises, Inc. has been serving the Denver metro area for over 37 years and will continue to serve it far into the future. We have built our reputation on providing excellent service and maintaining our personal relationships with our customers.

As budgets tighten, it is often tempting to try and save a few dollars by going with the cheapest price. But when it comes to critical services such as the maintenance of your building grounds which everyone will see, and high dollar items like irrigation systems and trees, saving a few dollars today can mean having to pay hundreds or even thousands of dollars tomorrow to bring a once well-maintained property back up to the standard you have come to expect. The saying "you get what you pay for" is especially applicable in grounds maintenance.

We will continue to provide the same high quality services to our customers that we always have. We believe that this approach provides value to our customers in terms of consistent appearance of the property and regular maintenance of critical components such as the irrigation system. And we will continue to partner with our customers to meet their specific needs and provide suggestions of ways to further enhance the appearance of the landscape.

How Smart Are Your Irrigation Controllers?

"Smart Controllers" have communication capabilities to download weather data and translate that data to adjust watering schedules. These "just in time" adjustments provide water savings by cutting back to actual water needs where traditional controllers are typically programmed for maximum needs. There are numerous systems available from several manufacturers. Most Smart Controllers can simply replace your existing controller(s); but there are significant set up procedures required as part of the investment. Call us anytime for consultation on Smart Controller conversions.
